Quilted Love

We remember that delicious outfit she wore to her first birthday and had on at every other memorable occasion that year (despite having grown out of it five minutes in). But we just can't stand the idea of hand-me-downing a $100-pair of mini Sevens (or two), so the meaningful rags and riches tragically end up in a plastic bin in the basement.

Now what if we could take these gems of the past, cut them up, sew them together and make a sumptuous pillow or to-die-for blanket? It may be too ambitious for our not-so crafty hands, but thankfully the lovely people at Where Did You Get That can do it for us.

We sent in our favourite old items of clothing and within weeks were sent back a quilted piece of the past that we will cherish forever. (Be prepared to cry at first sight.) The hardest part was choosing between hypoallergenic poly fill ($150) or feather-filled ($165) 20" x 20" pillows. And we hear that 42" x 55" blankets ($275) can be put in the works as well (and look fab in designer denim).

These quilted items are not just the sweetest, most sentimental way of repurposing treasured stuff, but an irresistibly unique, personal and meaningful gift for our child (and ourselves).
